Italian engineer conveys his feelings with music at St James Cavalier in Valletta

Posted On February 9, 2019 - Updated 9 February, 2019 10:42am

Report: Fiorella Pace

A Malta-based Italian pianist, who has been playing the piano for 27 years, will hold a concert in the coming days at the Spazju Kreattiv of St John's Cavalier in Valletta. The concert will mix piano melody with the sound of synthesizer.

Leonardo Barilaro has lived in Malta for the past three years. Aged 35, he has been composing music since the age of 8. Apart from being a pianist, Leonardo is also an engineer. He says that gradually he is living a dream to play and share the music he composes with many people in various countries. He has already performed in concerts in Italy, Turkey, the United Kingdom, Germany and now in Malta. Barilaro says that music is a means with which he describes events and his emotions through sound.

His concert at the Spazju Kreattiv in the coming days is entitled SeaSharp.

"Seasharp is a concept show where I unite in an innovative way the traditional piano and the synthesizer and I describe the concept of the sea as a metaphor and the symbol of our life. SeaSharp can be read at different levels, like the music key or like our eyes how they see life around us. For sure it's a non traditional type of concert because I love to challenge boundaries between classical and contemporary music, but also between for example progressive metal and electronic music, and every piece is a little story connected with each other and we are all part of a main story."

The concert will be held on Friday, 15th February in collaboration with the Italian Cultural Institute.
